Creep it real: DIY Halloween addition

Halloween is just around the corner, but why give your wallet a fright when you can get creative with budget-friendly DIY decor? It's time to get crafty and transform everyday items into spooky masterpieces.

Here are six DIY Halloween decorations that are all treats and no tricks.

1. Ghostly milk jug lanterns:

Transform your empty milk jugs into ghostly lanterns by cutting out eyes and mouths, painting them white, and placing LED candles inside. Pro tip: Line them along walkways or stairs.

2. Glowing phantom floaters:

Blow up white balloons, place glow sticks inside, and draw spooky faces on them with a marker. And voila! You've got an army of floating heads staring back at you!

3. Spider egg sacs:

Stuff white pantyhose with cotton balls or paper towels, sprinkle in some tiny plastic spiders, and hang them from treetops or bushes. Pro tip: Pair them with stretchable cobwebs from your local craft supplies store.

4. Spooky window silhouettes:

Use black trash bags (or old bedsheets) to cut out shapes like spiders, witches, and webs, then hang them up in your windows for a haunting display. Pro Tip: Light up your home at night to give passersby a glimpse.

5. Pumpkin string lights:

If you're keen to dip your toe into the crypto pool, remember that the risk is real. Don't launch into it blindly, and only invest what you can afford to lose.

6. Poisonous potion bottles:

Give your old perfume, pill, and condiment bottles a glow up! Paint over them, adorn them with plastic gems, and label them with creative potion names for a memorable centerpiece.
